

CHINESE WOMEN DEMAND RIGHTS

Leagues Asked Incorporation of Liberal Planks in Laws

OUT FOR PARLIAMENT

Would Eliminate Bigamy Equalize Educational Opportunities

SHANGHAI.—Declaring that certain planks in favor of women should be inserted in the proposed constitution of China before it is ratified by parliament, leading Chinese women are launching a women's rights movement.

There is a widespread awakening of the women of China and, led by the returned students and young women educated in the mission and government schools, a nation-wide campaign is being attempted.

The women's rights movement originated in Peking when a group of 24 students from the Women's Higher Normal school gathered to discuss the status of women of China in relation to the constitution. Feeling that during this period of transition is the time to receive a hearing, the young women are making a determined effort to cause the interest of the women of other cities.

As a result of their efforts women's rights leagues have been organized in Tientsin, Hankow and Shanghai and many other cities are expected to fall in line. Under the leadership of the leagues the women's organization, schools and women as individuals are being enlisted in the campaign, which promises to be the first organized movement of the women of China.

There are six planks in the manifesto which have been printed by thousands of copies and circulated in the girls' schools, mission organizations and homes. By radical are the demands made by the modern young women of China in their effort to secure the same rights as their American sisters before the law that they have fought for so much opposition to the petition from the old conservative element in China.

Even if the demands of the far-reaching young women are granted by parliament (and the women declare that they will keep after parliament until they are) it will be many years before the masses of China are educated up to their high standard or that they will be empowered as laws.

The manifesto demands are as follows:

1. The same educational opportunities for girls as for boys and the opening of all higher educational institutions for young women. This means coeducation in China.

2. The right to vote and be elected to any public office, even to parliament.

3. Equal property and inheritance rights.

4. The prohibition of the buying and selling of foot binding and vice.

5. The prohibition of the buying and selling of wives which will give the husband and wife equal rights before the law and will make the taking of a concubine or second wife by the husband punishable by law. The women demand that such an act be declared bigamy.

6. Laws which will protect women workers and give equal pay for equal work with men.

The Women's Rights League of Shanghai meets every week and the little group of earnest young women, including teachers, Young Women's Christian association secretaries, business women and others, are whipping their organization into shape and making their campaign plans. They hope to enlist thousands of women and older school girls in this city in the cause.

Legal Delays in Clearing Up Crime, Breaks Heart of Singer's Pretty Daughter

Copyright, 1922, by Inter. News Service. Have hope, faith and love," was the only message Mrs. Edward W. Hall, wife of the slain pastor of the Episcopal church of St. John the Evangelist at New Brunswick, N. J., sent to her daughter, Mrs. James Mills, choir singer, who was murdered with Doctor Hall. This message was sent just after the two bodies were discovered.

What this child, who became a woman overnight by the shocking tragedy that disrupted her life, feels about this lone message from her former Sunday school teacher is here told in an exclusive statement written by her for International News Service. She also comments upon what she terms the "battering work" of the officials at work on the mysterious case.

By CHARLOTTE MILLS.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 25.—I do not understand Mrs. Hall and her peculiar habits formed since my mother's body was found, murdered and mutilated by some unknown person or persons. She used to be so kind and gentle to me before this terrible tragedy. Yet now she refuses even to see me, although I called at her house, knocking for a word of understanding and sympathy from her.

I read a note she sent to me and my tears came. I can not help but cry. But her words do not agree with her actions and I am puzzled and pained. The note was short and was sent after the bodies were found. It said:

"Dear Charlotte: Always remember what Mr. Hall said in his talk Sunday. God loves us. We know so little of the world; it is full of love. Have hope. Have love. Have faith. Above all, have love.

"Affectionately yours,

(Signed)

FRANCES NOEL HALL."

I remember that sermon and how beautiful it was and only a few days later, he, with my mother, was murdered. I think of his words and I think of her note. It is easy for her to tell me to have faith and love. But how can I with this terrible murder unsolved and five long weeks passed.

Widow Defuses to See Girl.

My mother, my dear mother, whatever anyone may say about her, is gone. I shall never see her again. Yet I am told to have faith and love, while Mrs. Hall looks herself up in her great silent house, refusing to see anyone, to say anything, to help anyone at all who may be able to shed some light upon this mystery that blasted both her life and mine.

Occasionally since that note I receive indirect word from my former Sunday school teacher, who now acts so strangely to me and who is closeted in that mansion, guarded by detectives and her attorney. The word from her carries a message of sympathy, condoling with me in my bereavement, telling me that she feels for me because I am young and have no friends.

I don't understand it at all. I don't understand why she hired private detectives to guard her and hired a lawyer to protect her. And that lawyer!

More than once he suggested to me that it would be a good idea if I were to go away and not speak about this terrible unsolved and unavenged crime.

"We will send you away," he said. "I don't know what he means by 'we' but I do know that I will not be sent away by anyone until I know who killed my mother. I shall never rest until the murderer or murderers are found and punished."

Wants Justice, Not Sympathy.

People give me sympathy. Every one tells me how sorry they are for me. But I do not want sympathy.

I want justice. I have cried until I can not cry any more and I am so lonesome without my mother. I am afraid to think of her lying under the ground, alone, and that I shall never see her walking around the house again, or talking to me or caring for me. It is so hard to talk about this, yet I must for I don't want this horrible murder to grow cold and go unsolved. I don't want to see influence brought to bear upon anyone that will interfere with bringing the guilty ones to justice. Yet I must sit by and see that instead of working together to solve this terrible affair, the officials spend a great deal of time wrangling among themselves. The Somerset officials put it up to the Middlesex county officials and so on indefinitely.

I don't understand why they bungled the investigation from the very beginning. Now my one hope is in the state and they are hoping in when the trials have become cold, the ground upon which the murdered bodies were found has been trampled by thousands of morbid curiosity seekers. The autopsy did not take place until long after the bodies were found. And even now nothing has been done to discover so far as I know, where the pistol and knife are with which the terrible crime was committed.

Everyone from detectives to the governor tells me that they are working hard and will do what they can. But there are no results, why don't they force people who have not been thoroughly investigated to speak up? Where is the pistol with which the murders were committed?

Where is the knife with which my mother's throat was hoarsely slashed? Why is Mrs. Hall barricaded in her mysterious seclusion? No one answers. And every night I ask myself these questions. Continuously I ask myself these questions so far as I know, where the pistol and knife are with which the terrible crime was committed.

SOCIETY DIVIDED ON CANDLER CASE

New Orleans Women Side With Mrs. de Bouchelle in Controversy

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 25.—Church and social life in New Orleans today is seething in the coils of the Candier-De Bouchelle controversy.

Friends of Mrs. de Bouchelle to the city's social life are demanding that some step be taken to clear the name of the woman who has charged the family of Asa G. Candier, Atlanta millionaire of circulating reports that she had invited two men to visit her hotel room and thus forced the breaking off of her engagement to Mr. Candier.

It is understood that a prominent woman's club was brought into violent debate recently when an effort was made to pass a resolution calling on the Atlanta Woman's club to stop for the support of Mrs. de Bouchelle.

Recently when Methodists of the city planned to invite Bishop Warren Candier, a brother of Asa G. Candier, to address assembled congregations of the city, many of these church members rose in rebellion and declared themselves hostile to any such plan. Then sentiment among the church was carefully sounded with the result that a decision was reached to have the bishop here. He will address the Methodist Sunday night.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 25.—Capt. P. S. J. Wilson, chief engineer of the United States public roads bureau in Washington, opens a five-day conference in Fort Worth next Monday with the highway engineers and commissioners of Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas. They will discuss plans for uniform road building in the four states, and a connected pike system.

Indians to Dance at Ponca City's Mardi Gras

PONCA CITY, Oct. 25.—Otoe Indians will provide the feature dancing for Ponca City's Mardi Gras Hal-loween observance, next Tuesday evening, which has been christened the Wat-che-ga-zha or ghost dance. The Otoes will give sketches of the old ghost dance, now prohibited by the government, and other tribal and religious dances. The program for the celebration includes also a style show, automobile parade, industrial parade, street dance and other events with a wat-che-ga-zha queen to inaugurate the dance.

INDIAN ACCUSED IN DIVORCE CASE

Finigan (Gibson) Suit for Separation Develops Counter Charges

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 25.—New activities were promised today in the sensational divorce charges and counter charges by Mrs. Ray Finigan, also known as Anita Gibson, and her husband, Ray Hanford Finigan, when Mrs. Finigan was to file an amendment to the original divorce suit and Finigan was ordered to appear at the district attorney's office.

That William Harrison Chen, Osage Indian, and Frederic C. Warren, New York millionaire, named by Finigan as co-defendants in his cross complaint to his wife's suit for divorce, had retained counsel to protect their interests could not be verified. Chen is said to be in Kansas City visiting his parents, and Warren is somewhere in the east.

IT RESTS WITH YOU

Your Vote May Decide—Shall That Radical Mob From North Dakota Combined With a Corrupt and Deceitful Oklahoma Gang Bring Bankruptcy, Ruin and Remorse to this State?

North Dakota Was Bled White—Now Sorry—

Townley, political revolutionist, found Radical Socialism under that name unpopular. He believed he could sugar-coat it under the name of the Non-Partisan League, steal the label of the dominant political party and through this scheme, get control of Government. He tried it in North Dakota. He made it alluring. The voters, all unsuspecting, fell for it. Before his bunch got into power, North Dakota's State debt was only $400,000. After five years of Townley rule, it had mounted to seven million dollars. Taxes on farm lands had increased 300%. The Utopian dream had crashed, leaving wreckage in its wake, from which that state will be years recovering. They learned the truth too late.

Why Radical Mob Chose Oklahoma For Next Raid

Kicked out of North Dakota, these Radicals looked about for another victim upon which to pounce. They attempted to light in Kansas but the American Legion sent them on their way. In Oklahoma, they found the situation ideal. First, a nucleus of Radicals. Second, an established Radical newspaper (Oklahoma Leader). Third, a governor needing help and seeking vindication for acts of his administration. Fourth, a political leader, sufficiently Radical and with a satisfactory record for extravagance with taxpayers' money. Fifth, a state whose public funds represented "Big Game." And so the well trained Radical crew of professional trouble-makers was imported to Oklahoma to put over "the job."

Radical Platform and Candidate Put Over at Shawnee and the Democratic Label Stolen Bodily

In Oklahoma, unlike North Dakota, the dominant party was Democratic. So this party was chosen to accomplish their purpose. They selected the name; "Farmers-Labor Reconstruction League," as sufficiently alluring. A convention was called at Shawnee. It was packed with Dakota and Oklahoma Radicals. In addition to these were countless many sincere farmers and laboring men, interested in anything promising sorely need: Governmental improvement, but misguided as to the real motives of the leaders. A violent Radical platform was written and adopted. The stage was set. Mayor Walton dramatically entered with the remark: "I don't know what your platform is, but I'm for it anyhow."

Thus he became the Candidate of Socialist Radicals, to supersede as a Democrat in the cunning scheme to "bore from within."

Radical Candidate Victorious Due to Division of Support of Regular Democrats Against Him

The Democratic candidates sensed the danger. They bitterly assailed Walton and his Radical platform. Walton gathered the support of Radicals and numbers of misguided Democrats. Real Democrats opposed him, supporting either Wilson or Owen. The vote of those opposing him was divided. Walton received 119,501; the other candidates 159,751. Although a majority of 31,250 real Democrats opposed Walton, he became, in name at least, the Democrat nominee. The will of the majority was flouted.

Walton Insulted Will of 2 to 1 Majority of Democrats Who Voted Down Radical Platform at Convention

Delegates to a State Convention were selected by Democratic Caucuses throughout the state. They met for the purpose of drafting a genuine Democratic Platform and ratifying it. This platform eliminated all Radical planks of the Shawnee platform and was a platform on which all Democrats could stand. It was adopted by a 2 to 1 vote. But Walton sulkily stood against it in favor of the Shawnee Platform without change.

Robertson Hand Shown For First Time at Convention When He Said: "I Got What I Wanted"

Although the Shawnee Platform denounced the "looting of State Banks" under Robertson's administration, his gleeful shout: "I got what I wanted," revealed for whom his influence had been quietly working during the primary. Neither of the other candidates had dared to defend his administration. A few days later speaking before Young Democrats Robertson said: "After all, the Governor has some power," also "I would rather lose the whole ticket than to lose Mayor Walton." What power will the next Governor have, in which the present Governor is so vitally interested?

Voters Learn the Truth of Walton's Damning Alliances and See Through Cunning Plot of "Reds"

The Oklahoma Leader, Radical Socialist newspaper said upon Walton's nomination, "This gives us the Governor, the election Machinery and the Militia." Charles Ruth, Walton's City Attorney, substituting for Walton at a Sand Springs Labor Day meeting said: "Talk about serfdom in Russia; great God workmen, you are today working under worse serfdom than any poor Russian ever worked under."

He also advocated "dragging Judges from their benches" who enforced the United States Government Injunction against rail strikes lawlessness. Such revolutionary utterances and the fact that such well known Radicals as Geo. Wilson, Oscar Ameringer, Pat Nagle, L. N. Sheldon, Dan Hogan, Luther Langston, W. K. Walden, (negro) and others are active in his support have disclosed that Walton's allegiance is not to Democracy but to Radical Socialism of the Reddest sort.

300% Increase in Cost of Mayor's Police Department Belies Claim of Economy—Taxpayers Wonder—

The four years from July, 1915, to July, 1919, under Mayor Overholser the cost of Oklahoma City's police department was $362,883.67. Four years under Walton from July, 1919, to July, 1923, the cost will mount to the staggering total of $1,227,021.08. During this time the Mayor has had absolute control of the Police Department. No one else is responsible. Allowing for all increases in cost, due to growth of city, increased salaries, etc., 100% increase might not be unreasonable, but an increase of over 300% is inexcusable. But in spite of this home owners must pay for residence section police, monthly fees to secure police protection. What would the Mayor do with a centrally controlled state bank, mill, elevator and other toys with which politicians might play? Campbell Russell's inquiry as to the source of the Mayor's investments totaling $28,000 in Building and Loan stock always made in green-backs, remains unsatisfactorily explained. Taxpayers wonder about these things.

Lovers of Good Government; The American Flag and Ideals, and believers in clean, honest administration of State Affairs, hailed with joy, the Convention speech of John Fields in which he made this pledge:

"I pledge to you, if elected, to give to this state FOUR YEARS OF A COALITION ADMINISTRATION. It will be a different coalition from that already accomplished by the opposition—it will be a coalition of Republicans and Democrats who believe in orderly and constitutional government and the preservation of American Ideals against Russianizing influences. To the giving of that kind of administration if elected, I pledge the people of Oklahoma every atom of strength and ability that God has given me and in my efforts I shall need the daily support of all good citizens and the prayers of all the Christian men and women of this state, which has grown so great and which now totters on the brink."

The greatest test of good citizenship has been met by thousands of good women and men, who though Democrats by heritage and tradition have been broad-minded enough to stand for the man in this Crisis in State affairs. The women are to be most complimented for they were first to organize the Democratic Women's Good Government Club. Prominent in these organizations are such true Americans as Mrs. M. J. WARNING:

It Will Require The Vote of Every Good Citizen To Defeat The Radicals And Those Whom They Have Successfully Deceived

The strength of the Radical Mob lies with two kinds of people. First: those of their kind; and second, those who can be misled with rainbow promises or an appeal to blind party prejudices. Every voter, regardless of party is charged with a grave responsibility. The question is, are we to have a man who will earnestly try to correct existing Governmental evils and to bring relief to farmers and laborers and prosperity to all, thru safe, sane and intelligent methods? Or, are we to invite Russianism, bankruptcy and remorse by voting for a reign of wild, irresponsible Socialism and corruption, which throughout the history of the world, has, without exception, left nothing but disaster in its wake. The people—ALL the people—always pay by direct or indirect taxation for such mistakes.
